ALMUTH SCHAPER

Almuth Schaper visited the Department of Human Nutrition at the University of Stellenbosch from 5 April – 27 August 1999 as an elective student.

Almuth was exposed to selected aspects of theory and practise of the following fields of dietetics:

- Cardiology
- Diabetes mellitus
- Protein – Energy Malnutrition
- Oncology - Paediatric and adults
- Nephrology
- Internal medicine
- Tuberculosis
- Burns
- Enteral nutrition
- Surgery (Diarrhoea, Crohn's disease, Heartburn)
- Paediatrics
- Premature babies

She received ward orientation in the various therapeutic sections mentioned above and patients were allocated to her for assessment and follow up. She found the dietary treatment of renal patients very interesting and accompanied the dietitian to the dialysis unit.

She attended selected academic ward rounds with the final year dietetic students and accompanied dietitians on daily ward rounds. She was encouraged to participate in discussions by asking her questions.

It was expected of her to participate in all these specified activities and she was encouraged to visit the library as often as possible.

Although it was difficult to communicate with Almuth because of her poor command of the English language, this improved as she became more fluent in the language.

I am convinced that Almuth acquired valuable but selected insight in our profession and wish her success in her future endeavours
